261 Record of notary publics representing banking firms in an attempt to collect sums due in cases in which the bank has acted as a middleman between a drawer and an endorser. The endorser signs a promissory note to pay the bank a certain amount by a certain time and the drawer withdraws that amount from the bank. When the endorser doesn't pay on time, the bank commissions a notary public who presents the original promissory note to the bank's cashier and demands payment. The cashier refuses and says "funds have not been provided." The notary then protests against all persons concerned for all exchange, costs, damages, and interest suffered because of non-payment and sends written notices to the drawer and endorser of the note informing them of the demand, non-payment, and protest.
270 Shows names or drawer and endorser, amount and date of promissory note, date of protest, names of Notary Public and bank concerned, narrative of action taken, and signature of Notary Public.
