270 Included are warrants, bastardy bonds and commitments. The warrants show the name and place of residence of the complainant, date and location of offense, description of the offense, name and place of residence of the suspect, date of warrant, and signature of the Justice. On the back is the writ number, State of Delaware vs. name of defendant, signature of the constable executing the writ, and fees due the constable. A good portion were primarily arrest warrants issued by Georgetown Justice of the Peace, William A. Warrington. Bastardy bond cases (1823-1824) show the names of parents, sex of the child, the types of support due, and the amount of the bond. Commitments (1838-1839) to the county jail provide the name and hundred of the constable, name of the suspect, name of complainant, offense committed, date issued, and signature of the justice.
