261 Oral history interviews with a diverse group of people who attended school in Sussex County from 1900 to 1966.
270 Interviews were conducted with blacks, Nanticoke Indians, and whites who attended rural and town schools. Interviewees were asked about the school house construction and furnishings, teachers, teachers' qualifications and ability, subjects taught, extra curricular activities, discipline methods, school routine, the nature of students, comparison to those of other schools, and an evaluation of their educational experience. The interviewees are not named. There are fifty audio cassettes and a box of typed transcripts.
