 261 Record sheets maintained on pupils at Paul L. Dunbar School, a segregated black elementary and junior high school.
 27X Records generally show student name, address, sex, race, date and place of birth, date of entrance, physical characteristics, parents or guardians names and occupation, home address, subjects taken and grades received each year, standardized test results, personality profiles, and guidance recommendations. Some records also include photos and health record information. Some files contain nothing but a 1981 form letter advising that the student had attend their school but "records did not survive".
