261 Richardson and Robbins were canners in Dover, especially known for their canned chicken and plum pudding. This volume records the amount of product they were producing each day.
270 The volume shows the date, number of boilers, number of women working, number of cans produced, and average number of cans per boiler.
Sometimes notations of what they are cooking are made such as soup, broth, chicken, noodles, and chicken la king.

This volume is in very poor condition with some pages stuck together.
