et a growing demand, it is inevitable that e cost of the final product will be affected. s really quite simple... your bills pay our bills. he rates are not high enough to meet our mmittments, we will no longer be able to pay r bills, attract investors, or borrow money to nstruct new facilities. That would mean we ould be unable to provide the services that are necessary to assure a continuing supply of electricity. We don't think the prospect of sitting at home and waiting for the electricity to come back on is an acceptable alternative. We feel it is far better for each of us who benefits from electricity, to bear a fair share of the expenses involved in producing it. We're thankful that ome of the best things in life are free and feel are you'll understand that, although electricity n't free... it's a darned good buy for something that's still undoubtedly one of the very est things in life.
