"Return Day in Delaware"

Excerpts from a New York Tribune article dated:

Georgetown Delaware November 10, 1860

(Earliest known newspaper article about Return Day known to exist, from the "Georgetown collection" of Jim Bowden)

"The carnival obtains a degree of importance in Catholic countries, and festivals, anniversaries and gala-days, invested with interest, are celebrated in nearly all regions with distinctive features, to give character to the display in each locality; but none of these commemorative occasions, probably, are more eminently marked with a peculiar cast than is "Return Day" in old Sussex ....

Known only here, it has become an institution of the county, and is inseparably connected with its history; it is essentially the big day, and cannot be approximated, in point of interest for numbers and notoriety, by any other.

At early morn of the day on which Georgetown is to become the Mecca of citizens from every section of the country, persons begin to invade the town ....

The impression left upon the mind of one who had for the first time witnessed Return Day in Sussex, if not unqualifiedly agreeable in every particular, would be enduring."

Ox Roast 2010

Dedicated to the memory of Ellery Parker

This picture was taken the year John F. Kennedy was elected President, 1960. Ellery volunteered to do the Ox Roast with help from a couple of classmates of 1951, and friends alike.

The wheel on the spit was donated by Boots Wilkins off an old hay rake of his. Ellery then welded the wheel on the spit, which made it much easier to turn the Ox. The Historical Society has a commemorative shotgun depicting historical events of Sussex County engraved on it. An inlay of Ellery's picture is on the gun with many other memories signifying the rich history that Return Day stands for; friends, family and a gathering to announce the leadership that has led our great country, time in and time out.

The Sussex County Return Day Committee would like to thank everyone who has attended, donated, participated, sponsored and worked to make this day successful. In a very short period of time Return Day has grown into a national event; it is not just a "Sussex County thing" anymore. Without the generosity and tenacity of the people named in this program book, another great American tradition would be lost. Thank YOU!

History of Return Day

Although the date of the first "Return Day" in Georgetown is uncertain, it could have been as early as 1791. The State Law in 1791 removing the county seat from Lewes to a new place later named Georgetown required all votes to be cast in the county seat on election day. "Poor traveling conditions and interest in the outcome of the political contest may have resulted in an extended stay by voters."

"Then, as now, interested persons would visit the county seat to hear the announcement of the official results." In 1811, voting districts in the individual hundreds were established, but the Board of Canvassers, presided over by the Sheriff, would meet two days later in Georgetown to announce the final returns.

Naturally the gathering of two or three thousand politicians, supporters and curious on-lookers made for a very festive atmosphere. J. Thomas Scharf in 1888 described "Return Day" in the History of Delaware as one of the customs peculiar to the people of Sussex, from time immemorial, is to hold high carnival on the day when the results of a general election are announced.

By early morning, Sussex county folks from every nook and corner, and even from Maryland, could be seen coming to the county seat in almost every conceivable manner to observe "Return Day". Some walking, others on horseback, and still others in carriages, coaches, gigs, and farm wagons, drawn by ox, horse, or mule. Many of the vehicles were gaily decorated with bright colors or flags.

On most Return Days, large strips of muslin were extended from one side of the court house to the other in the years of presidential elections. The names of the states that had gone one way or another were painted on the muslin with the approximate majorities.

A court bailiff would step upon the old court-house balcony, address the hundreds of anxious politicians, supporters, and curious on-lookers who stood below him on the Public Square, and cry out the results of the canvass court of election.

Booths, stalls and stands were erected near the courthouse, where all kinds of edibles, such as Delaware biscuit, hot corn pone, opossum and rabbit meat, fish and oysters, could be procured.

There was a big celebration in 1936 when Franklin D. Roosevelt won in a landslide and the Democrats carried the State for the first time in many years. Return Day was cancelled altogether in 1942 because of World War II. However, it was too good an event to let die in Sussex County where traditions are important. In 1952, a group of interested citizens of both the Republican and Democrat parties joined together to revive this great tradition.

Robert Walls, thanks for your support!

Reflecting over the years gone by, I can't help but realize how so very fortunate we are to be living in a country where we can cast a ballot for the candidate of our choice. We have the freedom to choose! Then, in celebration of that freedom; two days later after the ballots are counted, we gather in Georgetown, the County Seat, to hear the Town Crier read the RETURNS from the Court House balcony. After the RETURNS are read, we literally witness the symbolic "burying of the hatchet" bringing an end to the "mudslinging" and the campaign.

Writing this letter I understand the feeling of what it would be like to accept an award, such as an Oscar or Emmy. You know you have little time to talk, many people to thank, but you just can't seem to begin naming people for fear of missing someone. That being said, I would like to thank everyone who has worked together as a team to make this day of tradition possible. I cannot begin to do all of this alone; I am so grateful to my fellow officers, directors, committee and volunteers, all who have devoted countless hours to make this biennial event a success.

I will close with one GREAT BIG THANK YOU!

I wish you many Happy Returns,
